2007 DICKENS HOUSE DESIGN TOUR
Proceeds going to St. Matthews Episcopal Day School

Incredible. Astounding. I don't want to go back to my own home. These were just a few comments from the approximately 600 people who visited the Hillsborough home featured in this year's Dickens House Design Tour. In addition to serving as the Project Architect, Mark designed and decorated the owner'

"Many months of hard work by many individuals have been invested in transforming this 100-year-old estate. I hope this project will yield another century of graceful living as its legacy to future occupants," said Mark Tetrault, (Quoted in the September 2007 issue of GENTRY Peninsula magazine).

This showcase featured the "Who's Who" in architecture and building in addition to interior and landscape designers. Proceeds from this event were donated to the St. Matthews Episcopal Day School, the 50-year-old institution that provides exemplary academic and social programs to students from the surrounding Peninsula communities.
